

No room at the Inn...

That is how we felt on February 20, 2009. I woke up at 7:00am with some cramping. That was a good sign as I was a day past my due date and I really wanted to have the baby soon. After an hour or so we called our doctor and he said to come on in to the hospital even though I wasn't in active labor. He wanted to make sure I had the antibiotics I needed before delivery.

We arrived around 10:30am only to be told in triage that there are no beds available to be checked. In addition there were no rooms LDR's (labor and delivery rooms) available! I was told to stay out in the waiting room and they would call me in when a room is available. Needless to say I walked the halls and labored in the waiting room area.

Finally, after lunch they called me in and soon realized that I was having a baby that day! Needless to say that active labor started and I knew it wouldn't take too long before our little one would be born. I continued to ask my nurse where my doctor was and is there a room available yet? Keep in mind this entire time I was still in the triage room with two other pregnant women.

Thankfully my doctor showed up and it became evident that I was going to have the baby very, very soon as I had dilated to 8cm. They ended up wheeling me down to an OR room and I delivered there. Not what we had planned but God's hand was guiding the process the entire way. We had a nurse that was very supportive and encouraging.

Although no room at the Inn ...er... uh...hospital,

Peter Matteo was born!

(Peter shares his birthday with Grandpa St. Angelo)

Peter was visited by all his siblings, Grandma Perry and Great Grandma in the hospital. Despite a 48 hour stay in the NICU Peter was able to come home on Sunday.

Thank you so much for all your prayers. God controlled all the circumstances that could have been difficult so He would get the glory!

Prayer Requests:

- That Peter would love God with all his heart, soul, mind and strength!
- God would use Peter in mighty ways.
- Our family would adjust well to our newest addition.
- God would provide a larger van for our family.

Until the Whole World Hears,

Marc Kim
